Fuel shortage is real, Bond says

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — The Nixon administration has yet to realize it could trade the abudant U.S. food harvest for the oil it desperately needs, says Nebraska Gov. J.J. Exon.

Exon said: "The real secret to it, if the Nixon administration would ever catch on, is this: What does every nation in the world want? Food. The food shortage is more of an international crisis than the fuel shortage."

Exon was among the chief executives interviewed by The Associated Press in advance of the Midwest Governors' Conference, opening today with a discussion of the fuel shortage.

There was little agreement among the governors on the cause of the problem. But there were some suggestions that the federal government had bungled its role.

The Nixon administration's response was to be given today by former Gov. John Love Colorado, now director of the White House Energy Policy .

Gov. Patrick Lucey of Wisconsin says he doesn't know whether the shortage is real or contrived, as suggested by a staff report of the Federal Trade Commission.

"But regardless, the effect is the same," the Wisconsin Democrat said in an interview.

"The oil industry is using it (the shortage) to its own purpose, which is to break down the few environmental restrictions that have been placed on it, to ramrod through the Alaska pipeline when it's clear that a trans-Canada pipeline would put the oil where it's needed most, and to put the independents out of business."

Gov. William G. Milliken of Michigan says a state task force thus far has been able to match up supply and demand.

"It's not a major problem yet and I honestly don't think it will be," Milliken said.

Gov. Christopher Bond of Missouri, a 34-year-old Republican, called the problem "very complex" and said he has named an energy council to keep abreast of the situation.

Asked whether the shortage appears real or contrived, Bond said:

"The two are not mutually exclusive....there is definitely a shortage. Our resources are not growing. We're going to be more dependent on foreign oil even if we curtail our own usage."

Bond said "a very high priority" should be placed on keeping independent gasoline dealers in business.

Several governors said fuel oil for heating remains a prime concern for next fall despite current talk of gasoline shortages.

Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota said many schools have no contracts for heating oil.

"All over the the state we're having problems with county and local governments who can't get anyone to bid on their fuel needs," Exon said. "The competitive bidding system is absolutely shot."

Lucey said only 30 per cent of Wisconsin's institutions have received bids for the coming year.

The conference ends Wednesday with a final session on the setting of goals and the problems of the future.

3 die from area accident injuries

Two persons were killed and two others injured in two traffic accidents in the Bootheel area Sunday and early today, according to the highway patrol. Coupled with a late death from an earlier accident on Sunday, the number of traffic fatalities in the Troop E area this year rose to 57, compared with 84 deaths of the same time last year.

William Ray Sissum, 25, of Cape Girardeau and his brother, Kenneth Sissum, 31, of Advance, were killed at 12:34 p.m. Sunday on Highway 160 two miles east of Fairdealing when the younger brother apparently lost control of their tractor and gasoline trailer on a curve. The trailer overturned on its side, struck several trees and burst into flames. Both bodies and the trailer were severely burned.

Gregory Lynn Sanders, 13, of Campbell died Sunday at Children's Hospital in St. Louis from injuries sustained in a traffic accident July 3 when his motorcycle went out of control on Route WW three miles north of Campbell.

Two Water Valley, Ky., bicycle riders were injured at 12:30 a.m. today one mile south of Portageville on Interstate 55 when they were struck from behind by a car driven by Clarence E. Bunch Jr., 28, of Jonesboro, Ark.

James Dalton McCullom, 15, received a concussion, and Thomas Sullivan, 16, suffered a broken ankle and were taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital in Hayti.

A third bicycle rider was not hit by the car.

Sanders was born Dec. 18, 1958 at Marston to Chester and Earlene Hughes Sanders, who survive. He was a member of Calvary Baptist Church of Campbell.

Also surviving are two brothers, Ray Gene Sanders of Arnold and Wayne Sanders of the home; three sisters, Jo Ann Curtis of Monticello, Miss., and Rhonda Gail Sanders and Deborah Sanders of the home; paternal grandmother, Mrs. Bennie Sanders of Campbell; and maternal grandmother, Mrs. Beulah Griffin of Portageville.

Friends may call at Landess Funeral Home in Campbell until time of services at 2 p.m. Tuesday. The Rev. Don Cochran will officiate.

Burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery near Campbell.

Haywood man shot to death

HAYWOOD CITY — Frank Harris, 78, of Haywood City was shot and killed at 2 a.m. Sunday at Hamilton's Cafe in Haywood City, according to the Scott County sheriff's department.

The sheriff's department is holding Wren Randy Jenkins Jr., 34, of Haywood City in connection with the shooting.

Sheriff's deputies say it is not clear what happened, but that the shooting apparently occurred during an argument.

The deparment said that earlier in the evening Harris allegedly pulled a pistol on Jenkins in front of the cafe. Jenkins then apparently went home and got a shotgun.

Jenkins reportedly was on the dance floor of the cafe when Harris approached him. Words were exchanged after which Jenkins allegedly shot Harris in the side.

The sheriff's report states that there was a cut on Harris' head and that he was apparently hit with the shotgun after he was shot.

Harris was pronounced dead on arrival at Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Jenkins was apprehended within an hour after the shooting and is being held in the Scott County jail in Benton. As of this morning, no charges had been filed.

The incident is being investigated by Sheriff John Dennis and highway patrolman Jerry Crismon.

Woman killed at Malone and Pine

A 71- year- old grandmother was killed at 5:54 p.m. Sunday when the car in which she was riding was struck broadside at the intersection of East Malone Avenue and Pine Street.

Mrs. Strowdia Kirby, 316 Heath St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

According to police, Mrs. Kirby was killed when a car being driven east on Malone by her granddaughter, Mrs. Gladys Irene Lieurance, 33, of Route One, attempted a left turn onto Lillian Drive and was struck on the right side by a westbound car driven by John E. Hinton, 79, of 208 Missouri.

Witnesses told police that a pickup truck had stopped to make a left turn onto Pine from the westbound lane of Malone, and that the Hinton car swung around the truck into the right- hand lane.

Mrs. Lieurance told police that she didn't see the Hinton car because of the truck.

Injured in the accident and treated at the hospital were Mrs. Lieurance, who recieved multiple bruises and a cut on the scalp; her 5- year- old daughter Michelle, multiple puncture wounds

Burglars take guns and paint

Marshall Thompson, 100 Westgate, told police that someone stole two revolvers from his home while he was away Friday night or early Saturday morning.

Thompson said someone broke into the house through the screen door between 11 p.m. Friday and 2 a.m. Saturday and took a .22 - caliber revolver valued at $16 and a .32 - caliber revolver valued at $42.

Foncie Poe, 444 Smith, told police that someone stole four gallons of paint from the house he was painting at 126 S. New Madrid. The paint was valued at $24. It was taken between 5 p.m. Thursday and 9 a.m. Friday.

Police today were investigating a break-in which occurred sometime Sunday night or early this morning at the Caproco Inc. plant on Industrial Drive. Several vending machines were entered, but the amount of the theft had not been determined.

Joliet-Marquette expedition to be in Madrid Wednesday

NEW MADRID— The Joliet- Marquette Re-enactment Expedition, comprised of seven men and one 14- year- old boy, is making many campsites on the Mississippi River during the voyage. The crew will be at New Madrid Wednesday.

Other area river towns to be visited by the group are Caruthersville and Hales Paint, Tenn., Thursday and Osceola, Ark., Friday.

The voyagers will be greeted on the river bank at 5 p.m. Wednesday at New Madrid by a procession of city officials, members of the Lucy Jefferson Lewis Chapter of Daughters of American Revolution, Junior American Citizens Club, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and other citizens.

Leading the procession will be a color- bearer, with a replica of the old French flag which was made by DAR member Miss Dorothy Conway.

A skit will be presented by the voyagers on the river bank following the welcoming ceremony.

The group will be guests of the city and DAR for a dinner at New Madrid County Club. A brief program about the expedition, its experiences and entertainment will be presented by the voyagers.

The eight- member canou crew will camp Wednesday night on the Mississippi River bank and sleep under shelter of their canoes. Other members of the expedition will be guests of the Rev. S.W. Bauer, pastor of Immaculate Conception Catholic Church at the church rectory.

Thursday morning the expedition will leave for its next scheduled stop at Caurhtersville.

On previous overnight stops, Reid Lewis a French teacher who plays the role of Louis Joliet, has told spectators that the basic reason for the 3,000- mile canoe trip is to kindle the imagination and recreate for all Americans the life of what was once the present; and in this way to help the people of the Midwest become more conscious of their heritage and develop a pride in the history of their region.

CHARLESTON — A low bid of $47,000 by Dien Construction Co. of Dexter was accepted by the Mississippi County Court Friday for remodeling of the Magistrate Court room in the county courthouse, according to County Clerk Arthur Lee Goodin.

The only other bidder was Boyer Construction Co. of Sikeston, who submitted a bid of $47,500.

Ramada without liquor license

Ramada Inn, Highway 62 East, was ordered Friday to stop selling liquor by the drink after its liquor license expired July 1. The license has not been renewed by Miner Town Board.

One reason why the liquor license was not renewed, according to Miner Mayor L.F. Wheeler, is because the FBI report on the man who will be in charge of handling liquor sales at Ramada Inn did not arrive until July 3.

Wheeler indicated today that there were other reasons for holding up the license, but did not give them.

Wheeler said the Ramada continued selling liquor until Friday when the town board ordered the sales to stop.

The Ramada Inn management will meet with the board at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday to show cause why liquor had continued to be sold after the license had expired.

Wheeler said he didn't know when a liquor license would be reissued to the motel.

Scott banks to get $555,000

JEFFERSON CITY — State Treasurer James I. Spainhower has announced that Scott county banks will receive $555,000 from the first state- wide allocation of General Funds under the new Missouri Model for the Investment of Inactive State Funds.

Spainhower said the total amount distributed under the first allocation is $50 million. Every bank in the state was given an equal opportunity to apply for these funds.

Although about $42 million of the first $50 million dollars invested will earn for the state the current market rate of interest of about 7 per cent, Spainhower explained that approximately $8 million cannot earn more than 5 per cent because federal regulations set this ceiling for those banks with less than $100,000 state money on deposit.

Distribution is based in a formula which returns an amount to each county proportional to the amount paid by that county in state sales and income tax. According to Spainhower, this formula standardizes the requirements which must be met by banks before they can be selected for the deposit of these general funds.

When the amount designated for a county has been determined, applications from banks within that county are checked against requirements of the new formula and the amount available for deposit with each bank is established. Spainhower said, "Any bank in this county that reflects a community involvement by maintaining a loan deposit ratio of at least 50 per cent will receive its share of the money, providing it chooses to accept the deposit at the maximum rate of interest allowed by law."

The $50 million for this allocation reflects Spainhower's policy of keeping the state's money within Missouri whenever possible. Much of the money is from matured U.S. Treasury Bills purchased prior to legislation, introduced at Spainhower's request, which requires banks to pay Missouri the market rate of interest whenever federal regulations permit. "Without this new statute," Spainhower said, "I would have been faced with the rather unattractive option of sending the money out of the state for U.S. Treasury Bills or investing it in Missouri at a rate much lower than we will now receive."

The following deposits have been made available for the banks of Scott County:

Bank of Chaffee in Chaffee, $45,000; Scott City Bank & Trust Co. in Scott City, $50,000; Bank of Sikeston in Sikeston, $215,000; First National Bank in Sikeston, $155,000; and Security National Bank of Sikeston in Sikeston, $90,000.

THE JOHNNY-COME-LATELIES

We can all appreciate the increased concern and interest on the part of millions of Americans to conserve our land and natural resources. Trouble is, some of the newcomers behave and talk as though nobody, but nobody ever thought of the idea before. That would not be so bad, perhaps, if it were not that some of those who have recently appeared on the ecological scene tend to be ultra-critical of everyone else.

Of course, the truth is that the battle against litter and pollution, and campaigns for conservation, have been going on for many years. This historical fact was rather well documented recently by Mr. William S. Woodside, senior Vice President of the American Can Company, in an address given at Rutgers University. Mr. Woodside said that "Earth Day" -- April 22, 1970 -- "is popularly regarded as an epochal date, the point at which lack of concern for environment and resources came to an end and the new era began, the era in which the pure of heart got rolling.

"In truth, in packaging, containers and related fields, concern, planning, and concerted efforts began well before," he said.

Mr. Woodside then went on to explain that paper recycling has been known and practiced for many years, and that during World War II recycled paper reached a level of 44 per cent of all paper production. De-tinning and recycling of cans dates back to the early years of the century, and has been practiced continuously for 65 years by M & T Chemicals, an American Can subsidiary. And 17 years before the advent of Earth Day, a large number of manufacturing and industry representatives, including American Can, joined in a cooperative effort to form "Keep America Beautiful," an organization that has carried out a massive educational campaign to combat litter and beautify American.

Inspired by the objectives set forth by Keep America Beautiful, thousands of people and hundreds of independent organizations have participated in clean-up, fix-up campaigns, in conservation programs, etc; and all of this long before "earth day."

Millions of dollars have been voluntarily spent by American industry on air and water pollution controls, waste disposals and environmental protective research and development. This important function will continue. Perhaps even more important, these volunteer efforts have been made with a smile. Some of the Johnny- come- latelies could profit by the example.

A scorpion asked a beaver to take him across the river on his back. "Are you insane?" asked the beaver. "While I'm swimming you'll sting me and then I'll drown."

"Oh, come now," laughed the scorpion, "why would I sting you? Then I'd drown too. Come on, be logical."

"That makes sense," said the beaver. "Hop on and off we go." The scorpion climbed on the beaver's back but halfway across the river he gave the poor trusting beaver a mighty sting. As they both sank to the bottom, the beaver asked, 'Why did you do such a wicked thing? You said yourself there would be no logic in your stinging me. Why then did you do it?"

"Logic has nothing to do with it," signed the scorpion. "It's just my nature."

STREAMLINGING THE PROCESS

Will the proposed $250 billion federal budget ceiling be achieved or not, in the 93rd Congress?

New legislation will require additional funding. Many programs are in the pipeline which also will require more funding.

The only logical answer is to establish spending priorities on successful programs, and eliminate those whose track record proves them to be also-rans.

While this is being accomplished, the entire bureaucratic structure from the federal, state and local areas should be carefully scrutinized so as to eliminate duplication and outdated programs and to streamline government operations from top to bottom.

Someone said recently that consumers (as well as industry) have an obligation in making products safe and functional. How can consumers be involved?

The answer was given in a recent speech before a furniture manufacturers group by Mrs. Virginia H. Knauer, the President's special assistant for consumer affairs. She said that consumers must work with manufacturers and sellers to forge amicalbe solutions to their mutual problems.

Mrs. Knauer also stated that the federal courts are beginning to question administrators to render sound decisions regarding what the public wants and what industry can produce at a cost consumers can afford.

She then pointed out that the public believes in the resroucefulness of American industry. "This may be simplistic," she added, "but when there is a need to come up with a phosphate substitute, or an inexpensive system of unit price control, or a cleaner engine, American industry has proved it can do most anything time and again."

Mrs. Knauer believes that consumers must get involved with industry. They should tell manfuacturers what they want, and thus help create new products and policies. When consumers complain directly to management, the dialogue proves helpful in correcting unsatisfactory products.

If you would like to know more about being an informed consumer and how best to register a complaint, send for NAM's leaflet "Concern for Quality." A single copy is free; just write Consumers Affairs Department, National Association of Manufacturers, 227 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

NOT SUITED FOR ANYTHING

A man ordered a suit from his tailor and asked when it would be ready. The tailor replied, "You must remember that you have selected a very expensive and rare cloth. It is woven by monks high in the mountains of Tibet. It takes six weeks for an expedition to reach them just to get this special material.

"The buttons are made from clam shells and these clams are so rare and live so deep in the ocean that only deepsea divers can locate them. To find three shells that match often takes an expert two months or longer. To sew this suit together the way you want it takes six Italian seamstresses who sit cross- legged for days on end sewing each stitch by hand. And let me tell you about the lining ..."

"Please, no more," the customer interrupted. "I'm all chokced up over this suit and I'm sure it will be a beauty. But all I'm trying to find out is about when can I expect delivery?" The tailor said, "How's Thursday?"

Our hardnosed banker - relative often sends us clippings from his numerous economic reports for our edification. Here's one that sort of curled our hair as a present explanation:

"Scanning the headlines these days is enough to turn the most ingrained optimist into a confirmed pessimist. Wholesale prices in May took what one government official called a 'horrendous' rise. That, we think, is no exaggeration. It's further confirmation, if any were needed, that we're in the grip of what another commentator called "the worst inflation in this century.' Consumer confidence plummeted to new lows. Nixon is preoccupied with Watergate. He's letting economic matters slide (so they say). Newly-appointed White House Adviser John Connally is thinking of quitting. So is Treasury Secretary Shultz. Phade III is in shambles. The business boom is running wild, but fears of a recession are rampant. New controls seem imminent. The dollar is in deep trouble on foreign exchange markets and gold is skyrocketing. Stocks are slumping. Interest rates are soaring. Gold coins at Stack's are acting the way high - priced glamour stocks used to behave. The Fed is having trouble controlling the money supply. All countries are having rouble controlling inflation.

"We could go on and on. But we think the signs make it abundantly clear that the postwar era has ended. It was an era of abundance and profligate spending far beyond anything that could be sustained permanently. The excesses at all levels of society bred further excesses until the whole structure became so shaky it had to come tumbling down. The only question was when it would happen. Now it's happening ...

"Since man-made solutions have not been forthcoming, events will follow their natural course, just as they have in the past when governments have mismanaged their affairs. The historical cure for inflation is deflation. If governments had been willing to take deflationary measures when it first became apparent they were needed, we wouldn't be in such dire straits. But, of course, they found this politically unpalatable, so they continued to inflate. Now, the problem is, we believe, beyond rational solution. It's not just politically unpalatable -- it's politically impossible ...

"The stock market is flashing signals that can easily be read by anyone who wants to. It's telling us that it's a whole new ball game ... A whole new approach is called for, based on a whole new perspective ..."

We may not agree with much of the above advice, but it sure has given us something to think about. How about you?

PRODUCTION NOT AUTOMATIC

The left- leaning people-controllers in the United States are discovering the same hard facts that Lenin, Trotsky, and Stalin learned when they took over control of the industrial and agricultural operations of Russia. That hard and difficult lesson is plain to see, but the people- controllers never believe it, even after events prove their errors.

The hard fact is that production is never automatic. People- controllers act as if the problems of production have all been solved and if only the profit is removed from production, prices will fall and people will have plenty.

Of course, the people-controllers never admit that they are controlling people. They mislead the people into thinking that profits, rents, prices and interest rates are what are being restricted. The fact is that profits, rents, prices and interest rates are set by consumer demand, so when they are controlled, it is consumers who are the ones who are at the end of the line of restricted activities. It is you, the consumer, who is ultimately denied the right to buy items formerly in good supply.

Producers are punished first by the people controllers; this results in distortions and then absurdities in the economic process. Producers find they can postpone bankruptcy, if only temporarily, by destroying rather than producing. For example, a certain chicken grower may lose only 10 cents per bird by destroying the fertilized egg, rather than hatching it and losing 30 cents per bird by feeding it out and selling it to the price- controlled meat market. That means we can't find food to buy and consumers are the ones ultimately punished by the futile attempts to control people. The result can only be rationing, hunger, black markets and all the other trappings of the police state. Don't let it happen here. HLH

How Much Stolen:

Nation's Top Welfare Chief Tells Inside Story of Wasted Billions

WASHINGTON-- Of course there are strident outcries at the sheerest insinuation of cuts in welfare cash payouts and services. There is understandable fear among the truly needy. And there is empathetic anguish among the good in heart. And there is the chicanery of crooks who live off the system--- and live well.

It appears forgotten that the most knowledgeable authorities estimate that some $44 billion annually is distributed in public funds and foods to the welfare clientele. Some of this is stolen. The government attempts to protect itself. I asked Caspar Weinberger, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, to explain the government's position. Here, in his own words, he replies to the critics, the honest poor and their organized champions:

By Caspar Weinberger

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare

President Nixon's proposed 1974 budget may perhaps best be explained in the context of a typical family's budget. Let's consider, for example, a family of four whose sole income --- say, $8,000 a year--- comes from the father's salary.

For such a family, sound budgeting must always take into account changing needs, and changing economic conditions. For instance, the family will probably be able to budget more for nonessential services and goods when the two children are 6 to 12 years old than when they are infants, teenagers, or college- age.

At the same time, a period of inflation or increased taxes on the father's salary or on his home may require cutbacks in the nonessential activities, and devotion of a large percentage of the family income to the day- to- day costs of living.

The family, of course, has an alternative. It can throw budgetary caution to the winds and borrow money to pay for the nonessentials. If the father's salary rises, or the mother goes to work, the family's financial status may survive such "borrowing on the future." But if fortune dictates otherwise, the family may find itself in deep financial distress.

The process for federal budgetmakers is not at all dissimilar. Changing needs and demands, and differing economic pressures, vitally affect the size of every budget.

This is certainly true as we approach the 1973- 74 fiscal year. Immensely powerful economic pressures, generated in the late 1960s, continue to push the inflationary spiral. Thanks to President Nixon's economic game plan, we are winning the fight against inflation. But a huge new spurt of federal spending would act as a bellows on the inflationary embers.

Like the family, the President also has an alternative. He can simply raise taxes. But a tax boost would slow the economy to a crawl, crippling the progress that has seen more than 2 million new jobs created in the past several years.

So, again like any prudent family, President Nixon has chosen the only sane course: he has decided to cut nonessentials. By doing so, he will free up more money to be spent on essential undertakings, without either fueling inflation or raising taxes.

For the family, nonessentials may consist of a wide variety of things--- expensive vacation trips, a motorboat or new camper, a new wardrobe when the old one isn't really old or inadequate.

For the federal government, the nonessentials are programs that simply don't work, which have outlived their usefulness, or which are rife with administrative waste, inefficiency and red tape.

The President's object is not simply to cut spending--- the new budget he proposes would increase federal expenditures $18 billion over 1972- 73--- but it is designed to get rid of an additional $20 billion in nonessentials which, had they been included, would have forced tax- increase pressure.

Thus, while the budget calls for terminating a teacher-training program when 70,000 teachers are out looking for jobs, it also would fund nearly $1 billion in a program of direct aid to needy students pursuing college educations.

While the budget would do away with so- called anti-poverty programs in which up to 80 per cent of the money goes to administrators, it also includes expanded assistance for Social Security beneficiaries and low- income groups.

And while the budget would terminate federal aid for hospital construction in the face of a national surplus of hospital beds, it would also provide large new Medicare and Medicaid outlays.

In each case, a nonessential is being stripped away to free money for investment in an essential program.

Equally as important, the President's budget focuses federal assistance on those who truly need it. It would end the kind of wasteful program that allowed assistance intended for the poor to be diverted to those who can afford to pay their own way.

A striking example of just this policy in action concerns the social services program, begun in 1956 as a modest effort to help aged and disabled public assistance recipients care for their children.

Because this legislation was loosely drawn and the program poorly regulated, social services mushroomed into an open-ended federal bonanza for states and communities--- and for people who were not, by any definition, poor.

Before the President imposed a ceiling on the program, it had grown from $75 million in fiscal year 1962 to an incredible $4.6 billion in the current fiscal year.

Far from focusing assistance on the poor, the program bought new uniforms for prison guards, provided free day care for middle- class working mothers and permitted numerous other exotic but legal abuses as states rivaled one another in getting aboard the federal gravy train.

I recently announced new social service program regulations which will not only end such blatant abuses, but will--- because the abuses have been eliminated--- allow us to give more aid to those who truly need it.

For instance, we will be able to provide year- around day care for 532,000 children of poor, working mothers in 1973- 74, compared with just 317,000 in 1972- 73.

By pursuing such reform--- by rooting out inefficiency and waste--- we can expand assistance for the poor in every area. And we can do so without generating a new round of inflation which would have its most devastating effect, as it always has, on the poor.

Thus the President's budgetary philosophy may be summarized as an iron determination to get more bang for the federal buck--- not because he cares about balancing some bookkeeping ledger, but because he cares about the poor.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Unfriendly GOP Senators Made Special Nixon List

WASHINGTON — In addition to the lists of "enemies," the White House also kept a secret blacklist of Republican senators who displeased President Nixon.

This was no mere informational list, according to White House sources, but an "action" list of Republican recalcitrants to be punished. Those on the list were subject to retaliation, which ranged from petty humiliations to political reprisals.

"We called it the s--- list," said one source. "I knew sooner or later somebody was going to find out about it. Some of us privately opposed it."

The list was drawn up by staff chief Bob Haldeman who circulated it by hand to his top aides, with orders that they copy it in their own handwriting, not Xerox it.

The list

On the list at various times since 1969 were Sens. Jacob Javits, N. Y., Mark Hatfield, Ore., Clifford Case, N. J., Charles "Mac" Mathias, Md., Richard Schweiker, Pa., Charles Percy, Ill., Lowell Weicker, Conn., and former Sen. Charles Goodell, N.Y.

In trying to recall the names, our sources said they thought they also remembered Sens. William Packwood, Ore., William Saxbe, Ohio, and James Pearson, Kans. The sources were struck that Massachusetts' Sen. Edward Brooke, who often strayed from the Nixon line, was never put on the list.

"He never made it for the obvious reason," said our sources. Brooke is the Senate's only black member and the White House didn't want to alienate him.

The senators who were listed were supposed to be denied all the White House perquisites, or "perks" as they were called by the President's aides. For example, those on the list were generally barred from White House dinners and other state functions. They were cut off from campaign assistance and patronage jobs. They couldn't even always arrange special White House tours for their constituents, a traditional White House courtesy extended to members of Congress.

The blacklist was updated every three to five months. Names were added and removed, depending upon the political behavior of the senators on the GOP side. But usually, the list contained from six to 12 names.

Compared Notes

On the days the list was updated, it stirred whispered gossip among the insiders who knew about it. "We compared notes on what one another were doing to people on the list," said a source.

While none of the senators apparently was aware of the formal list, which was sent around without even a heading on it, some felt its whiplash effect.

Former Sen. Charles Goodell, for example, told my associate Les Whitten that he was systematically snubbed, and was denied White House invitations and patronage after he began taking exception to White House policies. "I couldn't even get any decent communication with them," he said.

Asked why no similar list was kept of House members, our sources said: "There were just too many of them to keep track of their voting. We had to play the House by ear."

Footnote: Efforts to reach Haldeman for comment through his lawyers were unsuccessful.

ITT'S RESPONSE: We recently reported that an ITT subsidiary, Scott Lawn Products, helped to install a free gold course for President Nixon at San Clemente. Before we published the story, we contacted the company with a series of questions, which the spokesman refused to answer. ITT waited until after the story was published to issue an indignant denial, claiming ITT didn't acquire Scott Lawn Company until after the golf course was completed. Although this is technically true, our sources swear that the acquisition was in the works and that ITT made the request for the free work on the President's golf course. We'll be happy to submit our evidence to any of the several official bodies now investigating ITT.

HOW TO SUCCEED: A retired New York City cop named Arthur Kelly has had a spectacular career in International Revenue's alcohol, tobacco and firearms division. He started at the low rank of GS-5 on August 11, 1969. He received promotions so fast that he wound up as grade GS -12 on April 11, 1973. It was almost as if someone was watching over him. Soneone was, Kelly's guardian angel was his brother-in-law, John J. Caulfield, the same man who carried promises of executive clemency to convicted Watergate conspirator James McCord. Caulfied, a White House favorite, was the division's assistant director.

NEW YORK (AP) — Life is the weaver and memory is the tapestry it weaves.

And what a wonderful tapestry every human life is. It is a pageantry of heydays and gray days, tremulous moments and dull years, idle dreams and transient agonies that seemed perpetual while they lasted.

Life has woven you an extensive memory pattern if you can look back and remember when—

Lydia Pinkham was a household name, and a bottle with her picture on it was on the shelves of more U.S. homes than any other product.

Farmers said corn had to be "knee-high by the Fourth of July" or they were in for a bad crop yield.

About half of a housewife's energy in summer seemed to be spent in fighting or trying to get rid of houseflies. For getting rid of them on the front porch, there was nothing better than an agile old man in a wheelchair with a wire fly swatter.

A mother had to serve biscuits or cornbread at every meal—or else what would the menfolk and kids have to sop up the bacon grease or gravy with?

Only rich men or dudes had a shirt laundered after wearing it just a single day.

There were more husbands in America who slept in their underwear than in pajamas.

When the children first started going barefoot in summer, mother sighed. She knew that within three days one of them would come home, hobbling and wailing with the agony of a stubbed and bleeding toe.

A juvenile delinquent was a kid who tried to hit songbirds with a slingshot.

A good neighbor was a lady who lived next door and always had a cup of whatever you needed to borrow in an emergency.

Those were the days—remember?

Union approves contract

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A pact calling for a wage increase of $1.04 an hour, improved vacations and improved basic and early retirement plans has been accepted by the bottlers and lab technicians at the Anheuser-busch brewery here.

Members of Beer Bottlers Local 187 and Lab Technicians voted 889 to 4 to accept the three-year contract Sunday.

James Kennedy, corresponding secretary for the bottlers, said Sunday the plan did not match the early retirement benefits won recently by Local 6 of the Brewers and Maltsters Union. "But we weren't seeking a plan to equal the brewers' plan," Kennedy said. "The brewers will lose about 290 jobs because of automation. We will only lose about 70."

Under the new early retirement plan, members of the two unions who are married and have 30 years of service with the brewery will be able to retire at age 62 with a pension of $600 a month.

When they reach age 65, the pension will be reduced by $300.

The 1,100 bottlers and 125 lab technicians walked off the job June 26, closing the brewery and idling some 5,000 employes.

Pickets were removed and workers notified to return to work Thursday after union negotiators reached a tentative agreement on the new contract.

Albert predicts 90-ahead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — House Speaker Carl Albert has predicted that congress will give the go-ahead for construction of an Alaskan oil pipeline to carry oil from the Arctic.

The Oklahoma Democrat told reports here Saturday that he favored the pipeline because it would help relieve the current fuel shortage.

The project has been held up because of envirionmental considerations.

Albert also said he did not believe there was a "widespread desire" among members of the house for impeachment of President Nixon because of the Watergate scandal. Albert said, however, that there is growing concern over the president's ability to discharge his duties in the wake of Watergate.

Albert passed through St. Louis on the way to Bowling Green, Mo., where he dedicated the home of former House Speaker Champ Clark, who died in 1921. The home is to be made into a monument.

Twitty Co. burglarized

LILBOURN — Authorities are investigating a break- in at Twitty Farm Equipment Co. sometime Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

Entry was gained through a rear window.

Taken in the burglary were a chain hoist, a drill, drill parts, sets, dyes, paps, two tool boxes, tools, a grinder, battery charger and three 12- volt batteries.

Lilbourn Marshal Fred Rowe, the New Madrid County sheriff's department and highway patrol investigated.

Chaffee, Malden awarded ACTION grants

WASHINGTON, D.C. — ACTION, the citizens service corps, has awarded $26,967 to the Rotary Club of Chaffee, Mo. to start a Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP). A $28,029 grant has also been awarded to the Malden, Mo. Chamber of Commerce for a similar program.

The grant o the private, non- profit organization at 800 South Main St. was announced in Washington today by ACTION Director Mike Balzano.

RSVP is a national program to develop significant volunteer service in local communities for men and women age 60 and over.

The one- year grant will enable the group to start an RSVP in Scott County, placing 100 Senior Volunteers in service the first year, and as many as 500 in the next five.

J. A. Chronister is Rotary Club president.

The RSVP will place volunteers with cooperating public and private social service agencies throughout the county. Senior Volunteers may serve with a meals program for the elderly, a tutoring program, a library and kindergartens. Volunteers also may be placed as arts and crafts instructors.

This grant is a result of President Nixon's request to Congress, following the 1971 White House Conference on the Aging, to greatly expand opportunities for meaningful volunteer service for older Americans.

RSVP was started in 1969 by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and became operational in July, 1971 when it became part of ACTION.

RSVP is planned, organized and operated on the local level. It is developed under the auspices of an established community-service organization or agency. Any retired person age 60 and over can become a RSVP volunteer; there are no education, income or experience requirements.

Volunteers serve in a variety of organizations, agencies and institutions such as courts, schools, libraries, day care centers, hospitals, nursing homes, scout offices, economic development agencies and other community service centers.

RSVP volunteers serve without compensation, although they may be reimbursed for such costs as transportation.

Other ACTION programs are the Peace Corps, Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), Foster Grandparent Program, Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), Active Corps of Executives (ACE) and University Year for ACTION.

Fireman called to 2 fires

Firemen were called to small fires Saturday and Sunday, one in an automobile and the other in a television set.

At 11:20 p.m. Saturday firemen were called to the corner of South West Street and West Malone Avenue when a car belonging to John Tinsley, 112 N. Handy, caught fire.

The fire damaged the motor and was blamed on a carburetor backfire.

Firemen were called at 4:35 p.m. Sunday to the J. B. Burnett home, 331 E. Gladys, when a television set caught fire. Firemen said the wiring was burned on the television set.

Forfeiture settlement approved

The forfeiture has been received pursuant to the Federal Claims Collection Act.

Sheila Darby is June bride of Dwight White

Miss Sheila Kay Darby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Darby of Bertrand, and George Dwight White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floral White of Sikeston, exchanged wedding vows June 30 at 7 p.m. in a double- ring ceremony at Tanner Street Church of God.

The Rev. Lee Fansler, assisted by Rev. Vernon Guttenfelder, performed the ceremony.

A large bouquet of yellow gladioli, yellow daisies and tangerine carnations was placed in front of the gold cross and a seven- branch candelabra holding orange candles. Two large ferns were used on either side of the communion table. The family pews were marked with arrangements of baby's breath and orange and yellow bows with streamers to the floor.

Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Billie Fair, pianist, played several selections and the traditional Wedding March. She also accompanied Mrs. Margie Brewer as she sang, "More", "We've Only Just Begun" and "The Lord's Prayer".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of dacron polyester organza. Her long veil of illusion was outlined in scalloped Chantilly lace made in France. The same lace outlined the ruffled oval neckline and sleeves of the handclip lace bodice and flounced hem of the gown. Her headpiece of yellow forget- me- nots carried out the color scheme of yellow and orange. She carried a cascade arrangement of yellow roses and white daisies with baby's breath and white streamers.

As the bride entered, she paused and presented her mother a long- stemmed yellow rose. At the conclusion of the ceremony, she presented a long-stemmed yellow rose to the mother of the groom.

The bride chose her sister, Mrs. David Emmendorfer of Cape Girardeau, as matron of honor. She wore a gown of orange crepe overlaid with yellow and orange organza and an orange picture hat. The bridesmaids, Miss Brenda Coffer of Charleston and Mrs. Charles White of Sikeston, sister- in- law of the groom, wore similar dresses of yellow crepe with the organza overlay and orange hats. The attendants carried colonial bouquets of yellow daisies and baby's breath with orange and yellow streamers.

Candlelighters were Marlena Walters of Portageville, cousin of the groom, and Kathy Elliott of Charleston. They were attired in floor- length yellow crepe gowns with green, yellow and orange sashes. Their wristlets were of yellow daisies.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dwight White

Miss Michelle White of Springfield, niece of the groom, was flower girl. Her dress was like those worn by the bridesmaids and she carried a white lace basket trimmed in yellow and orange filled with yellow rose petals.

Rice bags were distributed by Valerie White of Springfield, niece of the groom, and Cecily Elliott of Charleston. They wore dresses identical to that worn by the flower girl.

Presiding at the guest book in the church vestibule was Miss Debbie Groves of Bertrand.

The groom chose his brother, Charles White of Sikeston, as best man.

Groomsmen were Richard Wibbenmeyer of Sikeston and Steven Brase of Little Rock, Ark.

Ushers were Terry Summerlot of Sikeston, cousin of the groom, and Danny Mills of Sikeston.

Ringbearer was Master Andy Beis of Bertrand.

The men of the wedding party wore formal attire with yellow carnation boutonnieres.

Mrs. Darby selected for her daughter's wedding a floor- length coat and dress ensemble of blue knit. Mrs. White wore a floor- length lilac knit dress. Both wore white cymbidium orchids.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church dining room. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth and was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Serving were Miss Sharon Morrow and Mrs. Don Moxley of Bertrand, Miss Trudy Lindsay of Charleston and Mrs. Greg Huff of Sikeston. They wore corsages of white daisies tipped in yellow and orange.

The gift table was covered with a lace tablecloth over yellow and centered with a wedding candle.

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Charleston High School. The groom graduated from Sikeston High School in 1971 and is in the Air Force stationed in Biloxi, Miss., where they will make their home.

Among out- of- town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Wes Tesney and Mrs. Clemon Lauderdale of Haleyville, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Walters of Portageville; Mr. and Mrs. Harrison White of Parma; Mr. and Mrs. Don White of Springfield; Mrs. Emma Emmendorfer of Perryville; Mr. and Mrs. David Emmendorfer of Cape Girardeau; George Ruiz of San Antonio, Tex.; Mrs. Thelma Husted of Parma; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Summerlot, Danny Summerlot and Miss Barbara Moore of East Prairie; Mrs. Marguerite Deason of Blodgett; Mrs. Carla Vanover of Homestead, Fla.; and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Meadows of Grant City.

Ann Landers

Good Samaritans are still around

Dear Ann Landers: The attached clipping is the saddest commentary on brotherly love that I have read in all my life. What in the hell is happening to us, anyway?

The clipping, as you can see, reports on the suicide of a 25- year- old man whose car broke down near Green River, Wyoming. The note which was found under his windshield wiper read, "I have been waiting for 11 long hours for someone to stop. I can't stand the cold any longer. They just keep passing me by."

But for the grace of God it could have happened to me last week. I was driving from Boston to Portland, Maine. My car stopped dead about 15 miles out of Portland. It was ten o'clock at night and starting to blizzard. I had on a light coat because I had expected to be in a warm car all the way. A woman alone on the highway is an easy target for robbery, rape, murder--- anything. My husband had warned me about this for years, but I had made the trip several times and was never afraid.

After the third car had passed me by I began to panic. My fingers and toes were getting numb. I told myself if I got out of this dilemma alive I would never again be so foolish.

I was never much for prayer, but I began to pray harder than I've ever prayed before. God must have heard me because the next car stopped and took me into Portland where I arranged to have my car towed in.

That incident taught me plenty. I will never again pass up a motorist in distress, no matter what the hour. Please, Ann, make a special plea to your readers to put themselves in the other fellow's shoes, especially in bad weather. If we can't stop and give a helping hand to someone in distress, what is life all about, anyway--- I Am My Brother's Keeper

Dear Brother: A lot of people passed that fellow by the road before the Good Samaritan came along, so there is nothing new about your experience. Unfortunately, the increase in drug abuse has fostered violence and crime and many people have become reluctant to "get involved." This next letter is from Peoria. It came in the same batch as yours and helps give a balanced, more realistic picture of the world as it is, which is to say both good and bad.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night my girl friend and I were driving home from the bowling alley and we came on a girl from another team whose car was stuck in a ditch. It was cold and windy and we tried to help her out but it was hopeless. Several people drove by and just looked. Finally a man stopped. He tried to push her out but she was in the snow and mud too deep. In a few minutes another came by and offered to help. He said we needed to be pulled out and offered to go home and get a chain. He returned in a few minutes and the two men pulled her out.

This proved to me that there are still some kind and considerate people in the world who aren't afraid to "get involved," and I say thank God for them.--- Faith Renewed

Dear Faith: You've helped renew the faith of others--- and that's worth a great deal. Thank you for writing.

Confidential to Mouse-Trapped: Your "dilemma" comes under the heading of the high price of low morals. Shut up and pay up.

Jewelry has style

NEW YORK (AP) — Jewelry is primarily a fashion item today, not a status symbol.

The fashion minded woman of any age wears it as an everyday accessory. She prefers style and beauty in jewelry to snob appeal. Whether her gemstones originate in nature or are made-made is secondary, according to a profile done by Union Carbide Corp.

Society leaders and celebrities were asked if their jewelry for charity balls this season was real. "Certainly not," said a woman wearing a jeweled bib. "These days it doesn't really matter," said another.

Their standards are less pretentious than those of the rich and famous of their grandmother's day, who consistently wore large displays of gems to show their wealth and position.

The survey says today's fashion-conscious woman is modern, attractive and has a zest for living. She wants value for her money.

More than half the women polled select jewelry for its appearance, whether the gem is natural or man-made.

Jewelry must be in good taste, designed with artistry and style. A woman considers her personality, clothes and bone structure as important as current fashion trends in determining whether she wears large or more delicate jewelry and more classic or high-style designs.

In finer jewelry within her price range, the woman of today wants quality, not quantity, adaptable to her year-round wardrobe end mode of living.

The woman today asks advice from a jeweler she trusts in purchasing more expensive pieces. Se considers quality, man-made gemstones fine jewelry when they are set in real gold.

The majority of women of all ages were enthusiastic about man-made gemstones, preferring such synthetics as American-made Linde stars when compared side by side with natural star sapphires.

Like an answer to your wishes.

Herzog catches Brewer spies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Texas Rangers—law enforcement kind—usually get their man, and Manager Whitey Herzog, the baseball version, is no exception.

Herzog also got a double defeat Sunday at the hands of the Milwaukee Brewers 6-4 and 7-3, but thinks he may have caught a couple of varmints in the act of stealing the Rangers' signs from a small chalet high in the center field bleachers.

Umpire Bill Haller ordered a man with binoculars out of the chalet and told mascot Bernie Brewer to take off his white gloves.

"I asked Jackie Moore, my first base coach, to keep an eye up there because he had a better angle and he thought he saw a guy up there with binoculars," Herzog said. "I couldn't figure out why that other guy had no white gloves on when we bat but put them on when they came to bat. Then he'd clap like hell every time we called for a breaking pitch. He called the right pitch six times in a row."

Elsewhere in the American League, the New York Yankees trounced the Minnesota Twins 7-0, the Boston Red Sox whipped the Chicago White Sox 11-2 in 10 innings after dropping their doubleheader opener 6-1, the Oakland A's nipped the Baltimore Orioles 6-5, the Detroit Tigers blanked the Kansas City Royals 3-0 and the California Angels took a pair from the Cleveland Indians 10-4 and 5-3 in 10 innings.

The Yankees rocked Eddie Bane, the Twins' bonus rookie fresh out of Arizona State University, for eight hits in 3 1-3 innings in his second big league appearance and his first defeat as a professional. Mel Stottlemyre hurled a four-hitter while Thurman Munson and Roy White homered.

Bob Montgomery's grand slam homer highlighted Boston's nine-run 10th inning against Chicago in their nightcap. Carlos May drove in three runs with a homer and double and Buddy Bradford homered as the White Sox ended Boston's five-game winning streak in the opener.

Gene Tenace's 10th-inning homer off Baltimore's Bob Reynolds came after both teams rallied in a wild ninth inning. The Orioles took a 4-2 lead into the ninth but Bert Campaneris started a three-run Oakland rally with a single, Sal Bando doubled and Reggie Jackson's infield hit produced one run. Jackson stole second and Deron Johnson delivered a two-run single.

The Orioles tied it in the bottom of the ninth on two-out singles by Brooks Robinson, Boog Powell and pinch hitter Al Bumbry.

Willie Horton doubled home Detroit's first run against Kansas City and Aurelio Rodriguez and Mickey Stanley added runscoring singles in support of shutout pitching by Mike Strahler and John Hiller.

Richie Scheinblum's two-run homer in the 10th inning after Winston Llenas tied the score with a pinch double in the ninth gave the Angels their sweep of the Indians. Bill Singer settled down after a shaky start in the opener to record his 14th victory and Vada Pinson and Bob Oliver contributed home runs.

National League scores: Los Angeles 3, Pittsburgh 2 in 12 innings; San Francisco 5, St. Louis 4; Cincinnati 4, Philadelphia 0; San Diego 4, Chicago 2; Houston 9, Montreal 7; Atlanta 4, New York 2.

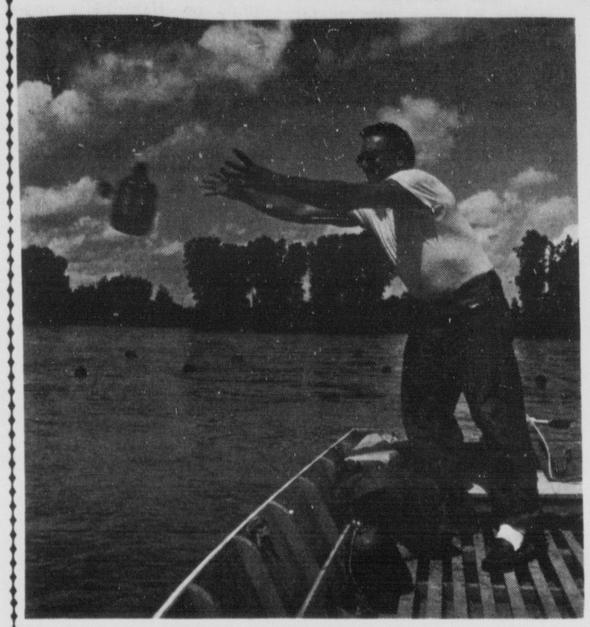
What is fishing?



Jug fishing

There are a boatload of exotic fishing methods used in Missouri, some legal and some not. This one, "jugging", is legal. Baited hook and line are attached to gallon- size jugs and allowed to float with river current or the wind on a lake.

Say "fishing" to the average Missourian and he immediately sees a picture of a baited or lured hook in the water, at the other end of which is a human attached to a fishing rod.

But the hook- and- line is only one of a multitude of fishing methods used by Missourians and other anglers, some of which are legal, many of which are not.

Most Missourians are aware that telephoning fish is illegal, but how many know that jumping bass likewise is illegal? Telephoning is the process of using a hand-crank generator, usually from an old wall telephone, to charge the water with electricity through dangling wires and stun fish which then float to the surface where they can be picked up.

Jumping is an old Ozark method of taking bass which involves slipping a boat along the bank at night with the stern against the bank and the prow slightly out in the stream.

Alarmed bass, lying close to the bank, often will leap into the air ... and land in the boat.

Likewise illegal are fish traps and, in most places, various kinds of nets. Commercial fishing, with the proper permit, is all right in the Missouri, Mississippi and lower St. Francis, but isn't permitted anywhere else in Missouri.

Fish traps or baskets used to be more common than they are now and a well-constructed one was a work of art.

Limb lines, throw lines and trot lines are legal most places in Missouri, but there are restrictions on the number of hooks and distance between hooks and the lines must be tagged.

Limb lines (a piece of staging with a hook attached to a limb hanging out over the water) are a jazard to boaters when the river drops, exposing the hooks.

Herons and other birds occasionally take exposed bait, thus hooking themselves. Limb and trot lines, by regulation, are supposed to be checked every 24 hours, but many are abandoned after the owner's fishing fever subsides.

Noodling is another esoteric fishing method that is not legal -- and definitely is not for the squeamish. It involves reaching into underwater holes and crevices and carefully extracting the fish that live there.

Akin to limb lines is jugging – the practice of attaching staging with baited hooks to gallon- size jugs and letting them float, either with the current on a river or the wind on a lake.

Gigging, bow and arrow fishing and spearfishing are somewhat akin and are legal only for non- game fish. There are seasons and other restrictions on both methods and the best bet is to check the regulations in the Wildlife Code Book, published annually by the Department of Conservation and available with permits or by asking.

Snagging and grabbing are essentially the same thing -- using naked treble hooks dragged through the water to snag fish that usually are not caught by conventional methods – paddlefish and suckers, for instance. Snagged or grabbed game fish are not legal.

Snaring is lassoing fish by easing a loop over the fish's head and jerking it out of the water. Again, game fish are not legal and there are seasons and other restrictions on snagging, grabbing and snaring.

One method apparently not used in Missouri is tubbing, not legal simply because it is not mentioned in the Code Book -- and Missouri has a permissive Code which means that if it says you can do it, you can do it. If it doesn't say, you can't.

That method is legal in Tennessee, but not widely used. "Tubbing in Tennessee is a method of capturing fish with a tub where the bottom has been removed," says W. Reid Tatum, assistant chief of the Tennessee Game and Fish Commission's fish management division.

"The fisherman wades through shallow water and places the tub over the fish, thus confining him to a small area. This is usually done when carpsuckers and redhorse are spawning in shallow water."

Undoubtedly there are other ways to capture fish, but no matter how exotic the method, it would be tough to beat the sight of a bobber plopping under as what surely is a trophy fish grabs a baited hook and runs with it.

Now, that's fishing!

D & B romps

Davis & Bird scored a 23-6 runaway over Harts Bread and Elliott- Newton took a 11- 7 victory from Home Materials Friday night in Jr. Babe Ruth action.

Davis & Bird bombed Harts' pitchers one after another. Two hurlers were blasted off the mound by D&B's solid hitting. Williams came in and slowed D&B down after they tagged the bases for 12 runs. Harts was dragging and could not play with Davis & Bird. Limbaugh had the only extra base hit of the game with a triple. Keller pitched the win.

Elliott- Newton trailed Home Materials and had to come from behind to take the win. Two runs were scored in each of the first three innings to gain the advantage. Elliott- Newton began hitting and produced seven runs. Home Materials was left standing as they failed to protect their lead and had to suffer the loss. Burnett earned the win for his efforts.

Aaron homers twice

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the past six years, George Stone was in the best possible place when Hank Aaron went to the plate—on the Atlanta roster.

On Sunday, however, Stone, now a New York Met, turned up in the worst possible place when Aaron went to the plate— on the mound.

Stone's baseball met Aaron's bat and became a souvenir, not once, but twice. The 39-year-old Aaron hammered home runs Nos. 695 and 696 (22 and 23 on the year) and the Braves defeated the Mets 4-2. He's now only 18 career homers shy of Babe Ruth's all-time record of 714.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati blanked Philadelphia 4-0; Houston topped Montreal 9-7; San Francisco edged St. Louis 5-4; San Diego beat Chicago 4-2, and Los Angeles defeated Pittsburgh 3-2 in 12 innings.

This is the era of audience participation. Spectators vote for their all-star teams and become part of the show at the theater, and now the Montreal fans are getting into the act.

They stopped the show in the top of the fourth by panning the performance of Houston left fielder Bob Watson, who had collided with Tim Foli at the top of the inning.

The 6-foot, 175-pound Foli was carried off on a stretcher with a broken jaw after attempting a tag play on Watson, a 6-foot3, 205-pounder who was moving to second on Doug Rader's ground ball.

The left-field critics provided their instant analysis, showering Watson with softdrink cans. But the show must go on, so umpire Shag Crawford warned that any batted ball striking the debris would be ruled an automatic out.

Cesar Cedeno, however, was the star of the show, make that game, belting two homers in the Astros' come-from-behind victory.

Grid camps open

By CARTER FLETCHER

The football season is upon us. Granted, we have yet to reach the first 100- RBI man, the first 20- game winner, or even the All- Star break. Nevertheless, we are about to hear the groaning of over- weight linemen, the cadence of calisthenics, and the duets of Don Meredith and Howard Cosell. The 26 teams of the NFL have begun to convene their summer training camps where quarterbacks loosen their arms, running backs loosen their legs, and linebackers loosen heads.

During the next few days, this writer is going to do a series of articles on the teams of the NFL concerning their 1973 prospects. Such matters as why the St. Louis Cardinals have a good outlook for 1974, but not 1973; why the Kansas City Chiefs could very easily finish at the bottom of the AFC's Western Division; and why Dan Devine's Green Bay Packers will again emerge in the play- offs will be discussed. The first of the series will deal with the Eastern Division of the American Conference.

Carter is a college student from Gideon, who is contemplating a career in sportswriting.

What's the law?

The case of the determined father

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Daisy Mae was a very bright high- school girl with considerable charm and above- average popularity. In fact, she had everything going for her except for one thing. Her poor old Dad was poor. Consequently, when it came time for her to graduate, she couldn't afford to pay the fees for the high- school graduation exercises, for a cap and gown, for the school yearbook or for the class ribbon. And while Daisy Mae felt dejected, her father felt even more so and voiced a complaint in court.

"Under the United States Constitution," he pointed out, "everybody's supposed to be treated the same. Well my daughter isn't. Because I haven't got the bucks, she's been denied the pleasure of participating in her graduation exercises. And if that isn't discrimination against the poor in favor of the rich, I'm John D. Rockefeller."

"Since the fees are the same for all students," responded a school official, "there's obviously no discrimination. Nobody's treated more equally than anyone else."

Determined, however, Daisy Mae's father insisted that the school authorities be precluded from collecting the graduation fees from those students who couldn't afford to pay it.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold for the determined father?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the equal protection clause does not bar reasonable calssifications. And requirng the rich and poor to pay the same fees for graduation activities is not unreasonable on its face since the state is not required to equalize economic conditions. The right to a class ribbon or to the school yearbook, concluded the judge, is not one of our most fundamental rights to be protected.

Kelley takes oath today

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon flies to Kansas City today for the swearing-in of Clarence M. Kelley as director of the FBI.

Nixon planned to speak briefly at the afternoon ceremonies at the Federal Office Building in Kelley's hometown.

It was the President's first public appearance since June 15, when he went to Pekin, Ill., for the dedication of a memorial congressional research center honoring the late Sen. Everett M. Dirksen.

A public turnout was expected for the occasion, with Missouri Gov. Christopher S. Bond on hand and Chief Judge William H. Becker of U.S. District Court in Kansas City administering the oath.

Kelley, 61, is a 20-year veteran of the FBI. He has been Kansas City police chief since 1961.

Kelley takes over from the current acting director, William D. Ruckelshaus, former head of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Highway department studies expansion of state system

JEFFERSON CITY — The rural Missourian may begin seeing improvements in the roads he travels if a study now underway by the State Highway Department proves positive.

Highway Department officials hope to be able to expand the number of miles of road now maintained by the state and continue an expansion program that lapsed in the 1960s.

During the 1950s, some 12,000 miles of road were added to the State Highway Department system bringing a hard surface road within two miles of every Missouri farmhouse.

"When the earlier expansion program ended, we wound up with some sections that were not connected," Robert N. Hunter, the highway department's chief engineer, said. "We want to work toward the continuity of the system."

As a first step, Highway Department district engineers have been contacting county courts and special road districts across the state asking them to prepare a list of their five priorities. That list is to be submitted to Highway Department headquarters in Jefferson City by July 15.

When it is in hand, the Highway Department will undertake traffic surveys and cost studies to determine which roads, if any, can be added to the state system.

Hunter said no definite decision has been reached yet as to whether the highway department can undertake the project.

The state is maintaining 32,000 miles of road at the present time, and many sections of that are substandard, according to the chief engineer.

"One of the considerations will have to be if we can do this and still do the job we need to do on the roads we are maintaining now," Hunter said.

Costs of the proposed expansion project would have to come out of existing Highway Department funds.

Because of this limitation, Hunter noted, "We can't get into this in a large scale."

THE CASE OF THE MISSING STUDENTS

It had to happen.

In a time when shortages of such things as gasoline, soy beans and tomatoes seem to be developing every day, Dr. Warren C. Lovinger, president of Central Missouri State University, came up with a shortage of students.

The shortage was discovered by a Missouri House appropriations subcommittee. Subcommittee members said the university reported an enrollment of 2,280 students more than the number shown on grade report records and student directory listings for the Warrensburg campus.

Since the enrollment figures are used in computing state appropriations to the university, the discrepancy meant of difference of between $2.6 and $3 million in state aid to the school.

In an appearance before the subcommittee last week, Lovinger admitted that 1,104 continuing education students at CMSU's residence center in Independence and 888 continuing education students at other locations had been counted as Warrensburg students. But, he contended, Dr. Jack Cross, executive secretary of the Missouri Commission on Higher Education, had told the state universities to follow that procedure.

Cross testified to the contrary.

"I'll have to admit we've been pretty sloppy," Lovinger said. "I'm admitting there was duplication. We're carrying on a full review of our enrollment procedures to polish up some of the rough spots."

ON VACATION

Missouri Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick left Jefferson City July 5 for his first official vacation in nine years in office.

Kirkpatrick will spend three weeks on a tour of Ireland, where else.

Hannibal in-trouble from floods

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — The home town of Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn is in trouble.

The city is struggling to recover from this spring's record floods and the merchants along Main Street don't know if they can manage.

"I'd just like to move away," says former Mayor Harry Musgrove, who owns a drugstore on Main Street. "But my neighbors wouldn't like it if I left."

Last spring, during what's become known as the "Great Flood of '73," muddy water ran up to six feet deep in shoe stores and dress shops and in Musgrove's drugstore

Other places along 1,000 miles of rampaging river took a beating, too. The suburbs of St. Louis, for instance, about 100 miles downstream. Quincy, Ill., 20 miles upriver.

But Hannibal residents say their community remains more openly vulnerable to a repeat performance than any other town.

Actually, this city of 19,600 is mainly in the hills. But downtown — including the 12-block Main Street — has always been on a flat strip right beside the Mississippi.

That's the way it was back in the 1840s when Samuel Clemens was a boy and steamboats ruled the river.

Tourists now troop through the white frame house just off Main Street where Clemens grew up, becoming a steamboat pilot and later writing under the name Mark Twain. His boyhood here is reflected in "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn."

Other riverside dwellers in this vicinity go in for levees these days and people here say that the levees protecting farmland on the Illinois side of the Mississippi help compress the river's flow during high water and force it onto Hannibal's streets.

The levees hem in the river when it floods. No longer can it spread six to eight miles wide across Illinois lowland farm country — a "safety valve" drainoff that used to keep Hannibal reasonably dry.

"They are getting increased benefits from our tax dollars because of the Corps of Engineers levees," said George H. Pace, director of the Chamber of Commerce. "We are suffering.

"This is a very touchy thing," he added. "They are our neighbors across the river, they sustain us, they are our economic life. But at the same time, when they receive an assist from our tax dollars to raise their levee over there to protect their investment, they aggravate our problems. And we're citizens, too."

Calvin L. Davis, director of the Board of Public Works, said a delegation sent to Washington to seek federal help got $30,000 diverted to the Corps of Engineers for a study to update a 1964 survey of a flood-wall for Hannibal.

But Mayor Bernard Williams said a flood wall for the entire area is probably not economically feasible. "The Corps said it wasn't feasible then (in 1964) and construction costs would be up considerably now."

The mayor assumed office during the flood. His predecessor obligingly drew a red circle on the carpet and on the desk to mark where to spot tin cans to catch drips from the leaky roof when it rained.

City Hall's leaky roof and the Upper Mississippi's record flood were only two of the problems he inherited.

Due to bitter impasse between management and labor, a major employer, Western Printing Co., was pulling out of its plant. Loss of 400 jobs would be a severe economic jolt.

Because of pollution problems, the coal-burning, cityowned, 15,000 kilowatt generating plant here was put on notice it may have to shut down.

Normally the plant operates during warm months to take care of peak loads on Hannibal's power system, which gets its main supply from Union Electric in St. Louis.

The city is trying to help three small plants, which employ a total of 115 workers, relocate out of the Main Street flood zone.

At this point, the future for the some 90 merchants along Main Street is uncertain.

"Say we agree that stretch of stores isn't worth what it would cost to protect it," Pace said. "What do you do? Do you go down there and say to these guys:

"Boy, root hog or die, we're leaving you."

FILION GETS AROUND

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — May was a busy month for Canadian reinsman Herve Filion who in 1972 drove the winners of 605 harness races. In a twoweek span he had won at four tracks — Yonkers, Roosevelt, Freehold and Northfield Park in Cleveland. He even made one trip to Saratoga, N.Y.

Filion won at all tracks but Saratoga. May put him on top for 1973 with 141 winners, five more than William (Buddy) Gilmour. Filion even went to Roosevelt Raceway one Sunday night when it was closed. But on that occasion he picked up from the New York Chapter of the U.S. Harness Writers' Association his 1972 Achievement Award.

DON'T DESPAIR! DON'T PANIC! AGING TOO FAST? READ THIS! STOP THE AGING PROCESS?

You can erase those lines and wrinkles. Feel and look 10-20-30 years younger? Can the aging process be slowed? Can it be reversed? Yes . . . on all counts, through BIOLOGICAL CELLULAR REJUVENATION THERAPY. The same basic cellular rejuvenation offered in Switzerland which costs several thousand dollars and must be repeated with injections every six months, IT'S NOW AVAILABLE TO EVERYONE who wants help. For only a few cents a day, you can keep up your program for years with no costly injections and no side effects.

YOUNG AND OLD BOTH BENEFIT

This breathtaking affirmative answer to these questions is made possible by the remarkable results of recent nutritional studies by B. S. Frank, M.D. of New York. The expected action of the biological cellular regeneration is: Improved and youthful appearance, improved skin, hair and nails, improved energy, improved mental concentration, improved organ functions, improved gland functions, renewed virility, slowing down of aging. Aging involves the loss of RNA and other metabolites. Cellular Therapy is available now for everyone and replaces these losses.

THE KEY

Dr. Frank's theory, strongly supported by his clinical results, is that the key to maintaining youthfulness lies in finding ways to help your body's DNA and RNA renew themselves so as to keep their patterns of genetic information etched clean and fresh. His work with DNA and RNA and related metabolites demonstrates the importance of these substances to the quality as well as length of life. They point not only to a longer life free of disease, but to the marvelous quality of being young as long as you live.

CAUSE OF WRINKLES

One of the most obvious effects of aging is the wrinkling of skin. In aging skin, there is a decrease in elasticity, and a thinning due to loss of fat and water. Lines and wrinkles in the face and hands become more prominent. The backs of the hands, highly visible indicators of age, become shiny, spotted with lentigos (brownish, pigmented areas), and perhaps may develop senile keratoses (horny, wart-like growths).

Why do all these changes occur? Because the cells which contain the blueprints for the formation of the various organs are tired and worn and no longer able to maintain the pattern they inherited.

To quote the doctor: "Basic to the author's approach is the theory that exogenous RNA, especially when combined with metabolically associated B vitamins, minerals, amino acids and sugars, will enter the cell and aid in normal regeneration of the decayed metabolic organization of the cell, and in so doing will bring about normal enzyme synthesis and activation." Results of studies "clearly show that exogenous RNA, or related compounds, especially when given along with other metabolites, do indeed visibly reverse aging," Dr. Frank said.

EASY TO TAKE CAPS

In essence, Dr. Frank's treatment is to supply the body, from external sources, with enough viable nucleic acids and with other nutrients these nucleic acids require to be properly metabolized. The nucleic acids themselves will therefore stay younger longer, and this will be reflected in the tissues they control.

Scientifically it has been proved to be very effective in stimulating the entire human organism. The RNA formula was discovered in 1924 by Russian scientists and introduced in human therapy ten years later. Since 1934 it has been further developed and improved in different countries of the world, particularly in France, Germany, Italy and Switzerland. The formula is the result of research and development work of professors in the leading institutes and manufactured under permanent control of state health authorities in the most up to date laboratories.

The oral formula is now available to everyone, plus simple instructions on proper amounts and use to gain immediate results within the first week of the program. This truly could be the remarkable fountain of youth we are all seeking.

FORMULA AVAILABLE FROM US

We now have the RNA formula in capsules described in the Brochure, and it is really fantastic. We are offering it to our mail order customers at an introductory price of $17.90. This includes a 90 day supply of caps RNA formula, plus metabolically related vitamins, minerals, etc., to act as the necessary catalyst for the RNA caps. It also includes the Brochure with complete instructions. Send $17.90 cash, check or M.O., No C.O.D. please. Plus $1.00 for postage and handling.

Rising prices can be linked to exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — A huge export drain on U.S. farm products, mainly wheat, corn and soybeans, is adding an extra $2 billion to consumer food bills this year, says the Agriculture Department.

Even with the freeze announced by President Nixon last month, retail food prices are expected to climb at least 12 per cent this year. Department analysts says at least 1.5 to 2 per cent of that increase can be linked directly to farm exports.

In all, food spending may rise to $135 billion this year from about $125 billion in 1972. Higher prices are the main reason for the $10-billion boost, but there are more mouths to feed too. And they are eating more.

That means, according to the analysts, that at least $1.75 billion of the expected increase in spending can be traced to higher prices caused by the biggest flood of farm exports on record.

For the year that ended June 30, the shipments totaled more than $12 billion or 50 per cent more than in 1971-72. Higher prices accounted for part of the gain, but the amount of farm products ordered by foreign countries has soared, too.

The effect has been to deplete reserves of grain and oilseed, prompting the Nixon administration to restrict further exports of soybeans, oil and similar products until new crops are harvested next fall.

The exports also have contributed to higher feed costs, forcing slowdown and even cutbacks in the nation's output of meat, poultry and dairy products. A further complication has been the price freeze, which growers and processors blame for a reduction in profits needed to spur production expansion.

Don Paarlberg, director of economics for USDA, says he does not think the United States is embarking on an era of permanent export rationing, despite the current curbs on soybeans and other high-protein feed.

"I hope not, and I labor to see that it does not occur," Paarlberg said in an interview.

"When we need exports as much as we do in order to improve our trade balance and to show that the dollar is a worthwhile currency, to restrict our exports is a very serious matter," Paarlberg said.

The big trigger was the sale last year of 440 million bushels of U.S. wheat, one-fourth the 1972 crop, to the Soviet Union. Russia also took upwards of 275 million bushels of corn and about 40 million bushels of soybeans.

Those sales were important to U.S. farm exports in 1972-73, but, even at a value of $1.1 billion, accounted for little more than one-fourth of the jump in value of commodities sold to foreign customers.

Japan and Europe, experiencing huge demands, as in the United States, for more and better food, were big buyers. Through last April, in the first 10 months of the fiscal year, Japan bought $1.89 billion worth of products, up 89 per cent from a year earlier.

The Common Market countries bought $2.91 billion worth in the same period, up 42 per cent from a year earlier.

Put another way, wheat exports last season totaled about 1.2 billion bushels, just as the new crop started to come in on July 1. Compared with 1972 wheat production, exports took about 75 per cent.

A record wheat crop is expected this year, maybe 1.7 billion bushels or more. But the reserve on July 1 was down to about 425 million bushels, the smallest in six years.

Corn exports are expected to total more than 105 billion bushels, about 20 per cent of last year's crop of 5.55 billion bushels. Production this year may be near a record of 6 billion bushels, although some officials think it might be less because of late planting last spring.

Soybean exports currently are expected to be about 700 million bushels, including equivalent shipments of meal, nearly 60 per cent of last year's record crop of 1.282 billion bushels.

Meantime, here is what has happened to farm prices of the three big commodities:

In June 1972, wheat averaged $1.33 per bushel. Last month, it was $2.43 nationally, the highest in 25 years.

A year ago, corn was $1.13 per bushel. In June, it was $1.99 per bushel, also the highest in 25 years.

Soybeans in June last year brought farmers $3.32 per bushel. Last month, they averaged a record $10 per bushel.

Meantime, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, here is what happened to some key food items whose production depends on grain and oilseeds:

In May 1972, hamburger averaged 73.5 cents per pound in retail stores nationally. In May 1973, the most recent month studied, it was 94.6 cents.

Other examples: Sirloin rose from $1.47 per pound to $1.75; bacon, 91.2 cents to $1.20; pork chops, $1.15 to $1.46; frying chicken, 40.5 cents to 58.4 cents, and eggs, 49.5 cents to 67.7 cents.

There are many complicated reasons for food prices going up, and farm exports by no means are the only factors. But economists say they can prove that most of the farm price increase for grain and oilseed the past year has been as a result of soaring exports.

Farm exports have been a keystone of Nixon administration agricultural policy. By developing overseas markets, officials have said, farmers can produce in a free market and rely less on the government.

The United States is the biggest farm exporter in the world, but only in the past decade have farmers come to rely so heavily on sales abroad.

In 1953, total farm exports were valued at $2.8 billion. By 1963, they hovered at about $5.5 billion. In 1964, then went to $6.3 billion, a record then, and have risen most years since.

Volunteers to be released

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — President Idi Amin today ordered the release of 112 Americans detained for two days in the eastern African nation of Uganda, the U.S. Embassy reported.

Amin, an unpredictable strongman at odds with Washington, had the young American volunteers taken into custody Saturday after their plane made a refueling stop in Uganda on the way to their Peace Corps posts in Africa.

Amin disclosed the release order in a message to the U.S. Embassy in the Ugandan capital of Kampala.

American spokesmen said it had not yet been decided when or by what route the volunteers would leave Uganda.

There was no immediate indication what convinced Amin, a burly former heavyweight boxer, to let the Americans go. He had said Sunday they would be held until he got assurances from the countries to which they were heading that they indeed were Peace Corps volunteers and not "mercenaries."

The young Americans — 49 women and 63 men — spent Saturday night under armed guard at the Entebbe Airport near Kampala.

They were transferred Sunday, still under armed guard, to a hotel on nearby Lake Victoria, where they spent the evening dining and dancing with the few guards looking on.

A U.S. Embassy official with the volunteers at Entebbe said there was "no great outpouring of joy" when he told the Americans of the release order.

Shortly before the word came through, one of the Americans said by telephone he would not mind staying on at the hotel a while longer.

"Another day or two would be fine with us," said Ken Beck, 25, of Walla Walla, Wash. "We're all really having a good time. The worst is over and everyone is happy and well."

Beck described chess games, tennis matches, guitar playing and rules against straying off the hotel grounds.

Arrest in error

City Attorney Manual Drumm said today that the June 28 arrest of Joe Crenshaw, 725 Park Ave., for filure to appear in court on a speeding charge was an error. Crenshaw had already signed a written plea of guilty and paid a fine, Drumm said, and the arrest warrant was issued because of an oversight by his office.

A DEALERSHIP OPPORTUNITY BIG AS ALL OUTDOORS

America is discovering that yard care can be fun again . . . a welcome relief from today's pressure living. And Case outdoor power equipment is the key to this new world of outdoor fun.

As a Case outdoor power equipment dealer, you sell and service proved products, with the same kind of precision engineering, performance, durability and service that mark the big Case farm and construction machines. You sell with confidence, backed by the $400,000,000-plus Case Company, a division of Tenneco. Power ranges from 8 to 16 hp to appeal to a wide range of prospects, both home owners and commercial users. A full line of compact tractors with attachments, riding lawnmowers and walk behind mowers, tillers and snowblowers.

What does it take to be a Case outdoor power equipment dealer?

A capital investment on your part is minimal. Case provides wholesale financing with floor plan privileges to make it possible for you to sell from a "full shelf". You can finance retail sales through Case Credit Corporation. The most important qualification by far is YOU. If you enjoy meeting people, selling them on the fun of home care with Case equipment and providing their relatively simple service needs, you have the makings of a profitable dealership. We'll supply the product and service know-how as well as management training.

Interested? Now is the ideal season to investigate the Case franchise. Call or write Jack Zeigler, J I Case Company, Winneconne Wisconsin 54986. My toll-free phone number is 800-558-0270.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean and grain futures prices were mixed in active early dealings on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

On the opening, soybeans were mixed with July down 60 cents at 6.50.

People experience joy and excitement, and they need to express their feelings. The world would be less human if they didn't.

Other feelings have to be expressed, too . . . and funeral service exists to fulfill this basic human need.

2 youths die in 'cycle accident

TUPELO, Miss. — Scott Davis, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Davis of Verona, was killed about 5 p.m. Sunday in a car- motorcycle collision on a county road near Tupelo.

The youth's mother is a former Sikeston, Mo., resident and a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Heckemeyer of Sikeston. The late Fremont Goetz of Sikeston was the boy's grandfather.

Also killed in the accident was Mike Harris, 17, of Plantersville. Both were riding on the motorcycle and Lee county Deputy Sheriff Mack Miller said he could not determine which one had been driving.

Robert Albritton, 20, of Verona, who was driving the automobile, was not injured but two passengers were injured.

Miller said the cycle and car hit almost head on in the middle of the blacktop county road. He said the cycle crashed into the grill of the car, then went under. Both youths were killed instantly, Miller said. Both the car and cycle caught fire and burned until a unit from the Tupelo Fire Department arrived to put out the flames.

Pierre Porteret, says he hopes that with this newly developed pride there will hopefully be an accompanying interest in preserving the natural and manmade vestiges of the past.

Phillips tells of changes the Mississippi River Valley has experienced over the last 300 years; of the pollution— the raw sewage, the fly ash-- that the voyagers have seen on the Fox, Wisconsin and Mississippi rivers.

"Where there was once four feet of top soil, there is now only eight inches," Phillips says.

Lewis added that they had been able to drink safely from Lake Michigan, but that such would be impossible on the Mississippi at the present time.

Father Charles McEnery, the expedition's Father Marquette, says his mission on this voyage is one mostly concerned with peace.

Three hundred years ago, Father Marquette was given a Calumet, a peace pipe, which he was to show Indians encountered farther south. It was a sign that they had come in peace and were to be treated as guests. In a recent ceremony, Father McEnery was presented with such a calumet, carved of pipestone from the same quarries in Minnesota used by the Illinois Indians to carve their pipes.

"This pipe", he says, "is a symbol of peace. And we must try to live up to all symbols. . .especially symbols of peace."

Father McEnery says he will take the pipe and show it to the people along the expedition's route, in hope that it will impress upon them that peace is not a new, but an ancient goal and a goal that should always be worked for.

In 1936 in Benton, she married Walter Kirby, who died in 1958. She was a retired employe of the International Shoe Co. factory.

Survivors include two sons, Aaron Burr Mills Jr. of Peoria, Ill., and Ronny Lee Kirby of St. Ann; five daughters, Mrs. John (Lucille) Harding of Las Cruces, N. Appeal for fuel gets results

MALDEN— A personal appeal Thursday by Dale Perkins for help with his own fuel crisis proved successful Sunday... at least for the present.

Perkins, owner of Perkins Oil Co. in Malden, was supplied with 8,000 gallons of gasoline Sunday, following dry tanks Saturday.

Perkins went to Florissant Thursday to tell a House subcommittee on small business problems about his fuel shortage. At that time, Perkins had 2,000 gallons of gasoline left to serve the 190 farmers who do business with him.

Members of the subcommittee expressed their concern over Perkins's dilemma. Later, Duke Ligon, director of the Department of Interior Office of Oil and Gas, was asked by Rep. William L. Hungate of Troy to "make Dale Perkins a test case" of how efficient the federal plan of averting the fuel crisis was.

At Thursday's hearing, Ligon testified that agriculture was one of the top priorities in the allocation of fuel. He said that he did not know of any specific instance in which fuel could not be obtained after his office had stepped in.

Although Perkins received a load of gasoline Sunday, he said today that the situation was still critical and that he still needs fuel oil...and more gas. "If I really put it out, this gas would last about two days," Perkins said. He added that he is rationing the gas by not filling the tanks clear up "so everyone will get a little."

He has had no promise for more gas from his supplier, Kellett Oil Co. of Sikeston. Saturday wasn't the first time this year his tanks had been dry, Perkins said, but the other timed had only been for a few hours at a time.

"I can keep the farmers in gas if the Office of Oil and Gas comes through," Perkins said, although he did not know exactly what kind of action was taken. Perkins has been in business about five years.

2 held for bogus checks

CHARLESTON — Two Charleston men are being held by Mississippi County authorities in connection with writing three forged checks in Charleston.

Jesse Watts and Leon Ross of Charleston are being held for cashing forged checks believed to have been stolen from Dicon Construction Co. of Olive Branch, Miss.

Watts allegedly cashed a $50 check Thursday at Cecil's Tobacco Store and was arrested Friday while attempting to cash a $150 at First Security Bank in Charleston.

Ross allegedly cashed a $100 check at Knight's Department Store Friday and was later identified by the clerk.

Charges were expected to be filed today.
